WHEN YOU'RE IN A HURRY . . .

The color code index is provided to help those who keep the Directory on their desk near the telephone and use it often.

With the color code, you can flip quickly to the exact section you want in the few seconds available between the time a call is announced and the time you answer.

Now you can know exactly who is calling, who to call, and what their title is.

HOW TO USE THE EDGE INDEX

Choose the heading you want from the ready reference index at the right.

Bend the pages of the Congressional Staff Directory nearly double to expose the black edge symbols.

Match the index mark next to the heading with the symbol on the page edges. Open the book to the exact section you want.

FIFTH EDITION (COMPLETELY REVISED FEBRUARY 15, 1963)

Although some of the material in this Directory can be obtained in one form or another, from other sources, it is nowhere else available in the format or context in which it is presented here. It is especially the presentation of this material in a form developed to enhance its reference usefulness which is original in this book.

The biographical section of the Congressional Staff Directory is the result of extensive research and the application of carefully established standards of selectivity by The Editorial Board. The cooperation of the individual biographees in supplying the Board with detailed personal histories is most important to the success of this Directory. It is the hope of the Board of Editors that the publication of this information will not result in any unnecessary loss of privacy for these individuals. Therefore, this notice is given that the use of the names included in this work as canvassing or mailing lists or for solicitation is beyond the use intended in the sale of this book and if damage follows to the editor or publisher through misuse of this Directory, legal action may be brought.

PREFACE TO THE FIFTH EDITION

Change is the theme of this 1963 edition of the Congressional Staff Directory, the fifth in the series which started in 1959.

This year, for the first time, the Staff Directory reflects the changes in the counties and cities constituting the nearly 200 Congressional districts which were redistricted as a result of the 1960 census. For all 22 states which redistricted, we have listed all cities of 1,500 population and over. This adds 1,300 more cities than were in the 1962 Directory. The additions are included both under the Member's name in the opening section, "State Delegations" and in Section 10, "5800 Major Cities—Their Congressional Districts and Their Representatives."

The 67 new Members of the House and the 11 new Senators are only the starting point for the changes in personnel and status which required 11,371 corrections before this edition was ready to go to press. Some committees delayed organizing until mid-April and forced the Editors to postpone the original March 1 target date for publication by nearly two months. However, since this is the only directory which lists both the Members and the staffs of both committees and subcommittees and since this is a feature of the book much in demand, there seemed no workable alternative but to wait until a complete book could be published.

Like its predecessors, the 1963 Congressional Staff Directory has been edited with one idea in mind . . . to make it easier for you to work effectively with Congress. In order to accomplish this objective, the material you need must be organized meticulously for rapid reference. As a matter of fact, even when you're using the telephone and have only one hand available you can turn directly to the section you need by using the color coded chart on the fly-leaf. This year, the sections dealing with the joint committees and miscellaneous offices on the Hill have been separated, printed on white paper, and placed logically between the blue section on the Senate and the yellow section on the House. The greatly expanded section on key personnel of the Executive Departments is now color coded separately on pink stock so you may turn to it more easily.

In reviewing last year's Congressional Staff Directory, the American Institute for Economic Research of Great Barrington, Massachusetts, encouraged our editors in their efforts to develop a well organized book for ready reference when they reported to their subscribers in their "Research Reports" for January 7, 1963, "Use of the book (Congressional Staff Directory) is facilitated by clear demarcations of its neatly classified material."

Since this Directory is not a government publication, the Board of Editors enjoys complete freedom of choice in assembling material solely on the basis of its reference usefulness to the user. The selection of those of the staffs who are given full biographical coverage is made entirely on the basis of such reference interest in them as individuals. The cooperation of each biographee is necessary, of course, for us to secure accurate information but no financial obligation accrues to anyone chosen for biographical coverage. It is impossible to buy a listing or otherwise influence the selection of the Board of Editors.

In compiling each new edition a questionnaire is sent to each Member, each clerk of a committee, and each department and agency of the Federal government as well as to each biographee. The staff is grateful for the help of all who completed these questionnaires and to the officials of the Senate, the House and the Library of Congress for their cooperation. Miss Ann Harshman, my secretary during four terms in Congress is again Associate Editor of the Directory and largely responsible for the accuracy and timeliness of the book.

Charles B. Brownson
Member of Congress '51-58

TABLE OF ABBREVIATIONS

In a directory of this nature, abbreviations are necessary in the interest of compactness and economy. The Editors have tried to serve these purposes without abbreviating to the point where the advantage of brevity is offset by the strangeness of the artificial language which results. Insofar as there are established standards of abbreviations, they have been followed. This table is provided as a help to the reader and in explanation of some abbreviations which are peculiar to the Congressional Staff Directory such as the b. in the biographies meaning born, the s. meaning son of, the dau. for daughter of, the m. for married, etc. It should also be noted that, rather than repeat the biographee's last name several times in one brief sketch, the initial of his family name, only, is used after the first appearance of the full name.

* following a biographical sketch indicates either that the biography, as published, could not be checked against the proof mailed to the biographee prior to publication, or that elements of personal history contained in the sketch were secured from sources other than the biographee.

STAFF BIOGRAPHIES

NOTES ON THE STAFF BIOGRAPHIES

The Board of Editors selects these names of key staff personnel for individual biographical treatment primarily on the basis of their potential interest to serious users of this reference work. No financial obligation accrues to those selected for complete biographical coverage. It is impossible to buy a listing in the Congressional Staff Directory or to influence the selection of The Board of Editors.

After lists of staff members are secured from individual Senators, Representatives and the Committees, the names are screened by the Board and detailed biographical information questionnaires mailed to those who meet the high criteria set by the Editors. Thus, to a great degree, the information included about each biographee represents his or her own appraisal of accomplishments to date. In a very few instances, information obtained from authoritative sources has been included.

Once the sketch is rewritten to conform with the style of this book and set in type, a proof is mailed to the biographee for correction, up-dating and verification. In the few cases where deadlines made complete authentication impossible, this fact is indicated by an asterisk following the last word of the biographical sketch which calls attention to the fact that the subject of this personal history did not have time to approve the material before printing. In a few biographies, the address or certain elements of information have been omitted at the request of the individual.

FORMAT

The form of the biographical sketch has been planned to make possible a detailed personal history arranged in orderly sequence with due regard for compactness. Unusual abbreviations used are listed in a table included with the preliminary matter at the front of the book. The hypothetical biography below is intended as an example.
